Office Hours: Mondays 2:15 – 4:15 pm and by appointment.
Syllabus revised: January 20, 2005

This course provides an introduction to United States history from the 1770s through the 1970s. We will examine major debates and developments in politics, culture, and the economy, paying particularly close attention to debates over such institutions of political economy as slavery and industrial capitalism, and to the question of what makes a good citizen. And we will practice the skills of interpreting evidence and building effective arguments.

Readings

Required

• John Hollitz and A. James Fuller, Contending Voices: Biographical Explorations of the American Past (Boston: Houghton Mifflin, 2003), volumes 1 and 2.

  These texts are in stock at the bookstore in the Johnson Center.

  These guidelines offer suggestions for reading efficiently, building strong thesis statements, and organizing essays. Following them closely will improve your grade.

• Primary sources, to be posted on the course website.

Recommended

Requirements

Participation (15 percent)

You are expected to attend class three times a week. The participation grade is based on your prompt arrival and active participation in discussions, especially on those weeks when you have a paper due. You should be in your seat, ready to take notes at 12:50 pm; chronic tardiness will lower your grade.

Basic classroom rules:
• Bring the appropriate volume of Contending Voices to class on discussion days.
• Do not eat in the classroom, before or during class.
• Turn off all cell phones, pagers, and other noisemakers.

Papers/Presentations (15 percent each, total 45 percent)

On four occasions you will submit five-paragraph essays (roughly 500-750 words or two double-spaced pages) in response to the assigned readings. Each student is assigned four papers, but only the three highest grades will count. Questions will be posted on the course website. In each case, your essays should conform to the guidelines for thesis statements, essay form, and style posted at http://www.schrag.info/teaching/teaching.html. Before submitting them, you should follow the steps on the pre-submission checklist at http://www.schrag.info/teaching/checklist.html.

Due dates vary. In each case, your essays must be brought to the start of class. Late papers, including papers brought late to class, will be penalized a full grade and 1/3 of a grade for each additional 24-hour period or fraction thereof. Late papers may be e-mailed to zschrag@gmu.edu. At the start of class you are expected to present your argument to the class and, with other members of your group, to lead the discussion.

Exams (15 percent and 25 percent)

We will have two exams. For each exam you will be given a choice of primary documents and asked to interpret them in an essay, drawing on the views of people you have read about in Contending Voices. The midterm exam will be a 48-hour take home. The final exam will be a 165 minute in-class closed-book essay exam.

Administrative information

All assignments are governed by the George Mason University honor code, online at http://www.gmu.edu/departments/unilife/honorcode.html. You are expected to work independently and to acknowledge all sources, including assigned texts and materials found online. Consult Gordon Harvey’s “Writing with Sources,” http://www.fas.harvard.edu/~expos/sources for instructions on when and how to cite, and ask me if you need clarification. In general, any sentence in your work that can be traced to a single sentence in someone else’s work should bear a footnote. Any collaboration, such as consultation with the Writing Center, should also be acknowledged. Violations of academic integrity will be reported to the administration and may result in grade penalties, including failure of the course.

In case of inclement weather, please call the main switchboard at 703-993-1000 or consult the main web page at http://www.gmu.edu/ to see if classes are cancelled. I expect to cancel class only when the university cancels all classes.

If you are a student with a disability and you need academic accommodations, please see me and contact the Disability Resource Center (DRC) at 993-2474. All academic accommodations must be arranged through the DRC.

All students are expected to check their gmu.edu e-mail regularly and are responsible for information sent to their GMU addresses.
Schedule
Each student is expected to read the chapters and additional material prior to each discussion section, regardless of which group has a paper due. Please consult the course website for more detailed instructions for each assignment.
