I. Course Description

This course uses the United States Congress as a model to describe basic legislative processes and behavior. The course focuses on learning and applying analytical tools to questions of legislative and electoral politics. These tools include spatial modeling, reasoning, evidence-based research, data analysis, and others. The substantive topics we will explore include congressional elections, voter participation in elections, lawmaking, congressional committees, the congressional budget process, and congressional parties. In addition to these institutional lessons, we will learn about types of voting, the theoretical problems associated with aggregating votes (such as voting cycles) and how Congress overcomes such problems to create policy.

II. Course Goals

I have three broad objectives for this course. First, I hope to stimulate your curiosity about legislative government and politics and provide you with a life-long desire to be an informed, critical and active citizen. Second, I hope students will develop a base level of knowledge and understanding about the processes and politics in the U.S. Congress. Third, I hope students will advance their critical thinking, analytic, and writing skills and be able to apply theoretical concepts to new problems.

III. Teaching Philosophy and Teaching Style

My teaching philosophy is based on three primary principles.

- First, I believe the gap between undergraduate and graduate coursework in political science is too broad. I therefore introduce advanced theoretical concepts in undergraduate classes so that students understand the true value of studying politics as a science; moreover, should any student choose to pursue advanced or graduate work in political science, they will be well prepared.

- Second, I believe in incorporating current events into classroom lessons. Nothing in science seems concrete until one can “see it with their own eyes.” Reading a daily newspaper and following current events, then applying theoretical concepts to political happenings helps to clarify theoretical concepts and demonstrate their utility.
Finally, as an instructor and a leader of class discussions on everything from lawmaking to elections, I aim to remain politically neutral and non-partisan. Students should learn to collect and evaluate information on their own. I would not want students who disagree with my political views to hear all course information with a skeptical ear; nor would I want students who tend to agree with my views to accept everything I say at face value. I encourage students to express their views, be critical, and challenge information when it is appropriate.

Accordingly, my teaching style supports my philosophy. I therefore use a Socratic-style, frequently ask questions, and encourage an interactive learning experience. I do my best to learn students’ names, encourage participation, and create, what I hope is, an open learning environment where students feel free to question, comment, and explain how they view course content. Such an environment helps to foster student interaction, thinking, and analytical and creative skills. Moreover, while lectures are important because they help to distribute necessary information and facts, they are not usually the most effective way to learn information. For this reason, we will do a variety of activities in the classroom. Successful performance in this course will include classroom participation and working in and out of class with your peers.

To help facilitate in-class participation I am beta-testing a new app for in-class use called nClass. All students should download the application to their mobile devices. We will talk about this more in class and students can get more information about this trial on the course Blackboard website.

IV. Student Responsibilities

A. Class Attendance and Participation. Learning is an active, rather than passive, exercise. Accordingly, every student is expected to attend class as well as be prepared to ask questions about and comment on the readings. You need to complete the daily reading assignment prior to the class meeting. You will be much more successful in this class if you attend regularly, take notes, pay attention, and participate.

B. Readings. As is the case with attendance, keeping pace with the reading is essential to succeeding in this class. It is your responsibility to obtain copies of the readings prior to the date we will discuss them in class. I will do everything I can to make this task easier for you. You will be much more successful in this course if you complete the assigned readings and take notes on them.

C. Technology The use of laptop computers, tablets (such as iPads), and smart phones is restricted in this class. The costs associated with electronic distractions, to you and those around you, outweigh the benefits of immediate supplementary classroom information. We will use smart phones applications (i.e., nClass) and other software under specific circumstances and with advanced warning. However, students may not use laptops or other devices on a general basis in this class. If these restrictions pose a challenge for you, please discuss it with me.

D. Cheating, Plagiarism, and Academic Integrity. Students in this course will be expected to comply with the George Mason University Honor Code (see http://honorcode.gmu.edu/). There are three simple guidelines to follow with respect to academic integrity: (1) all work you submit must be your own; (2) when using the work or ideas of others, including fellow students, give full credit through accurate citations; and (3) if you are uncertain about the expectations for any assignment, ask for clarification. Any student engaged in any academic misconduct will receive an F on the offending exam or assignment. Egregious violations will result in an F grade for the course and will be reported to the appropriate Dean’s office. These violations include cheating on an exam, using someone else’s work as your own, and plagiarizing the written word. Plagiarism (using someone else’s words or ideas without providing credit or citation) is a serious offense. If you have any questions at all about what constitutes cheating, plagiarism, or academic misconduct, please ask the instructor.

E. Students with Disabilities. If you have a disability for which you are or may be requesting an accommodation, please let me (the instructor) know and contact the Office of Disability Services (ODS) at (703) 993-2474 or http://ods.gmu.edu. All discussions with me regarding disabilities are confidential.

V. Following Political Developments in the Media
Students are required to follow current political events. A familiarity with current happenings in politics, and Congress especially, will facilitate your ability to understand the material. Along with any local papers you may read, I recommend that you read The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal or The Washington Post with frequency. You can sign up to receive daily e-mail news updates from the New York Times or The Washington Post for free on their websites. Additionally, you may want to examine news-magazines for more in-depth coverage of particular issues and events. Congressional Quarterly Weekly Report, Roll Call, National Journal, and The Hill are particularly informative periodicals. Other options include Time, Newsweek, or The Economist. Useful URLs are provided below.

VI. Course Requirements and Graded Evaluation

There are five graded requirements for this course, described below. Grades will be calculated on a non-curved typical A-F scale where,

- 97-100 A+
- 93-96 A
- 90-92 A-
- 87-89 B+
- 83-86 B
- 80-82 B-
- 77-79 C+
- 73-76 C
- 70-72 C-
- 67-69 D+
- 63-66 D
- 60-62 D-
- < 60 F

Biographical Sketch (7%) Each student will choose one of the 540 Members of the 113th Congress and write a brief biographical sketch of the legislator, limited to 200-500 words (excluding headers, footers, bibliography and title material). Students are required to provide in-text parenthetical citations and a complete bibliography of all sources used to produce the essay. I recommend the Almanac of American Politics, and CQ’s Politics in America as excellent sources for this assignment, but I encourage students to find other appropriate sources (by the way, Wikipedia is never an appropriate source for an academic assignment). This assignment is due on Wednesday, February 12 (by 5pm).

Problem Set Assignments (28% total; 7% each) There are four assignments, or problem sets, scattered throughout the course. Problem sets are available on Blackboard. Students are encouraged to do work in groups while thinking about the problem sets, but each student must hand in their own original work. Assignments that are obviously copied will receive a failing grade. Due dates of homework assignments are:
Assignment #1 is due Monday, February 24 (by 5pm)
Assignment #2 is due Monday, March 3, (by 5pm)
Assignment #3 is due Friday, March 7 (by 5pm)
Assignment #4 is due Friday, March 21 (by 5pm)

Midterm Exam (20%) This will be an in-class exam covering material from the first half of the course. The exam will include multiple choice, short answer, and analytical (homework style) questions based on material presented in class and in the readings. A study guide will be posted on-line no later than one-week before the exam. The midterm will be in-class on Monday, March 24.

Analytical Essay (20%) Each student will write one essay of 700-1000 words (excluding headers, footers, bibliography and title material) on one of two topics of their choosing. Students will choose A.) a 2014 congressional race or B.) a piece of key legislation in the 113th Congress and write an analysis of the race or bill. Students will use one analytical tool from the course to offer a prediction or explanation about the status of the race or bill. Further details about this assignment will be provided on Blackboard. The essay is due Wednesday, April 23 (by 5pm).

Final Exam (25%). This will be an in-class exam covering material from the entire course (comprehensive), though concentrating on material from the last half of the course. The exam will include identifications, short answers, and essay questions (closed book, closed-note) based on material presented in class and in the readings. A study guide will be posted on-line no later than one-week before the exam. The exam will be administered during the regular final exam scheduled time for our class on Monday, May 13, 1:30pm – 4:15pm. This is the ONLY time to take the exam.

VII. Policies on late work, make-ups and extra credit

A. Can I submit an assignment late? Students may submit an assignment after its due date (and time) for a 5% (off the total possible score) penalty per day (24-hour period) that the assignment is late.

B. What if I miss an exam? Make-up exams are only given in the case of verified illness or family emergency, such as a death in the family. Documentation is necessary to receive a qualified make-up examination. Students who arrive late to an in-class exam may still sit for the exam if no other student has already submitted their exam; once a single student hands-in their exam, no others may begin the exam.

C. Do you offer extra credit? No.

D. What can I do if I perform poorly on an assignment? Students who receive a 72% or less on a homework assignment or essay (not exam) may re-do the assignment for a replacement grade. Re-do assignments are subject to a 5% per day penalty starting from the day graded assignments were returned to students in class (regardless of attendance). Assignments that were originally submitted past the due date are NOT eligible for re-do.
VIII. Texts

The reading assignments are chosen to buttress and expand on the analytic foundation laid in class. Please notify the instructor about problems obtaining the readings as soon as possible. The following materials are required and can be found at the campus bookstore.
