

Course objectives review

Know when statistics might be appropriate (or inappropriate). Be able to give an example of each.

Be aware that statistics can be used to lie with, and again, be able to give an example.

Know definitions of:

statistic

noise/error (and know some causes/examples of noise/error).

Be able to give an example of an application of statistics (see some of the examples in chapter 1).